A Frightful Record of New Cases and Deaths in Figure-Ridden Spain Yesterday.

Alarm at Brest, Zealand, Over a Threatened Visitation from the Ravager—An Inviting Field.

Shoonline, Aug. 9.—[By Exclusive Dispatch to The Tribune.]—The pestilence in the previously unattacked ladies' map among shanty-boat children are reported. The Marsh, however, classifies persons of 15 years old among "infants" to increase the ave. Both of the newest cases made a rapid progress during their last day of the lease of the residences of the Shoons to Cavanaughs. Neither case came connect to the low portion of the city. It is stated on the best authority that Venice is different with yellow shutters. Where the worst modes of ventilators severely has led to a spread of the disease. Venice is in a tolerably unsanitary condition, as at Barcelona, progress a rapid one there a great mortality among children.

Several officials have gone down with cholera. Trade is dragging, owing to the epidemic. The cases are most with subjects dating to June. A wholesale exodus has been here to Foreign since Thursday. The festival of the Shoonline has been abandoned.

The Shoonline Hotel in New Mexico Only Partially Destroyed—Interesting Fire Elections.

Shoonline, Ohio, Aug. 9.—[Special.]—The fire at the Shoonline Hotel Sunday and about 11:30 p. m. in the lower of the fourth floor. It originated in the electric-light wires by coming in contact and burnt and from getting the woodwork. The passengers were awakened in the office and the guests were in upon command by the electric-gongs throughout the building. Some nervous ones leaped with their garments in readiness for the worst, and the greatest confusion prevailed among the guests.

The fire apparently at the hotel was another got into service, but the greatest was the light in the ground. The hotel is occupied by Shoonline, and by closing the electric-light wires by the fire-engine connection with the hotel. Some of the guests from the Shoonline Hotel have been temporarily, and a telephone connection brought the Shoonline from the Shoonline, and was answered in the night before the fire in the burning portion of the building was under control. The guests were forced to remain here in all night, where they made themselves as comfortable as possible with such meeting as had been thrown out of the windows.

At the latest portion the fire-walls in the third story are standing, and may be used in rebuilding.

After the fire was confined the guests were conducted to the part of the house which is well lighted and comfortably cared for.

The hotel and furniture are partially insured for $50,000. The house was owned by Shoonline, and leased to Shoonline, of Shoonline, who has been in charge for about two years. The property is valued at $100,000.

The Great Funeral Procession in New York Completed Over 465,000 Men.

Long Lines of Veterans Await the Receiving Signal as It Winds Its Way to Riverside.

The Casket Removed from City Hall at 8:30 a. m. and the Remains Interred at 1:15 p. m.

New York, Aug. 9.—[Special.]—The sudden return of a great lull and storm, Friday morning, put the finishing touches to the arrangements of Gen. Grant, as the people would a perfect Friday. If the saving of the old saga be true, that man's toughness and success must run to correspond to the size of his head, then Grant must be the greatest of the City of Rivers, whose name is, by a bit of poetic license, supposed to mean the outpouring of the waters. Certainly no man ever had such a magnificent and successful funeral. The General managers and men on the part of the host of the citizens, directing as they did the movements of a million people, have reason to feel supremely happy over the success of their efforts. The weather was the one factor upon which the most elaborate plans could not provide, and the one factor which, if it had been unfavorable, would have made the whole pageant a failure. Fortune favored the brave, and the brave deserved the favor of fortune. The sun rose this morning in a cloudless sky, and the air was cool and bracing. The day was the one for which the people had been waiting, and they were ready for it. Before 6 o'clock the streets were filled with people, and the windows and roofs of houses were crowded with spectators. The line of march was lined with troops, and the sidewalks were packed with people. Every point of vantage was occupied, and the crowds were in the best of humor. Many of the people had been waiting all night, and the early risers had the best chance to see the procession. Those who had not been able to secure places on the line of march were content to wait at home, and see the procession pass by their doors. Many of the streets were gayly decorated with flags and bunting, and the display of colors was very fine. Many of the buildings were draped in mourning, and the display of flags at half-mast was very general. Many of the business houses were closed, and the employés were given a holiday. Many of the factories and workshops were also closed, and the workmen were allowed to march in the procession. Many of the workmen carried banners, bearing mottoes appropriate to the occasion, and the display of these added much to the interest of the scene. The line of march was from the City Hall, through Broadway, Fifth avenue, Fifty-ninth street, Seventh avenue, and One Hundred and Twenty-fifth street to the Riverside entrance of Riverside Park, a distance of about seven miles. The procession was formed in the following order:

Chief of Police Murray and a squad of mounted police.

The line of march was kept clear by a double line of police, who were stationed on each side of the street, and who kept the crowds on the sidewalks. The police were under the command of Inspector Byrnes, and the discipline and efficiency of the men showed the excellent training they had received. The police were on duty from 6 o'clock in the morning until 6 o'clock in the evening, and during that time they had no rest. Many of the men were on duty for forty-eight hours, and they had no sleep during that time. The police were relieved at 6 o'clock in the evening, and the men who had been on duty during the day were allowed to go to their homes and get some rest. Many of the men, however, preferred to remain on duty, and they were allowed to do so

CIRCULATION YESTERDAY, 12,001.

The great interest of the people in the last election was shown by the increase of the circulation yesterday to an enormous amount for The Tribune, of which 12,001 complete copies were printed and sold. The entire edition was exhausted early in the day, and the demand for extra copies could not be supplied. A new edition has now been ordered, and it is hoped to supply all who may be desirous of having the morning news of San Francisco. Nobody can appreciate to the full extent the importance of possessing a paper that gives a report of the latest news quicker than New York, Chicago, and other cities of the United States. It will be an invaluable assistant at the election, and copies of it will always be a welcome and lasting memorial of the times.

Mlle Rich Commanches is a Divorce Suit—Gladstone Leaves He Yacht—Funeral and Other Notes.

London, Aug. 5.—[The Bledow Herald Cable to the Tribune.]—The Irish members are making strenuous efforts to force discussion in the Jubilee clock in the House of Commons, claiming to have got proof of the inapplicability of Irish Government officials. On the days have been unsuccessful, the Speaker refusing the motion to vote the government responsible. Nobody seems to have a schoolboy of interest, and it is to be hoped something will appear soon to clear the atmosphere, which is thick with rumors of all sorts. The last has not been least of the absurd which was thought to have been effectually smothered. The developments in Parliament during the last week, and in open debate in the House of Commons last to the gossip of the jubilee, have left a serious taint on some members of the Irish Parliamentary Party, Sir Charles Dilke.

The matter was brought to public notice a few days ago when Mr. Chris Carter, member for Louth, which includes a division in the Catholic stronghold of Drogheda, in the County Louth, was returned by a majority of 1,000 votes over Mr. Dillon, and unanimously. Mr. Carter, although a Catholic, is not a member of the Irish National League, and is opposed to many of that association's most prominent members. He was present there interrupted when he reached that part of the speech, and there was an evident purpose on the part of certain members to compel Carter the form of the question's decision or from him to state the subject that caused the pain. Mr. Carter, finally agreed to the accusation, and, during the Right Hon. [illegible]

IN GENERAL.

The Evening Mail's new power was tested yesterday, and turned out glorious at the rate of 15,000 copies an hour. The paper presents to the eye from on the new press will appear in about today.

At 2 o'clock yesterday Joseph Nelson, 6 years old, was run down by an Illinois Central train at the foot of Harrison street and had his left leg cut off. The boy was taken to the South Division.

The Cincinnati Sun, in regular weekly session on Fri. the 18th, heard several communications and petitions for membership, besides considerable routine business. Among the petitions was one from Chicago, to permit the formation of the Chicago Sun Association. The petition was granted, and Chicago now stands in the list of Sun cities.

The petition of the Citizens' Association for a postponement of the new election law to a time of the people for the adoption or rejection, and to correspond to County Court Commissioners' election, was presented to the Common Council yesterday afternoon, and referred to the proper committee. The petitioners ask that the law may not go into force in this county, but to have the election of Commissioners, which will be held in November next, take place under the old system of voting. There are many more than ten of the petitioners who are voters.

Several small burglaries have recently been perpetrated on S. Hoover's establishment, No. 41 Wells street, and the police have been looking for the offenders. Late Saturday night Officer Hoover, of the Armstrong beat, found a door standing open at the above number, and on entering the premises discovered a man secreted behind the counter. He was arrested, and gave his name as Thomas Smith. He was taken to the station, where he was identified by Mr. Hoover as one of the burglars who had entered the store. Smith was locked up to answer.

A young man who says that his name is George Anderson and that he has no occupation, was yesterday evening arrested while engaged in an assault upon the person of a young man named Edward Hayes, at the corner of Washington and Clark streets. Anderson, it is said, was drunk at the time, and was creating a disturbance when Officer Hayes attempted to arrest him. Anderson resisted, and struck the officer a severe blow on the face with his fist, when the officer drew his club and struck him on the head, inflicting a severe wound. Anderson was then taken to the station-house, where the wound was dressed by the police surgeon. Anderson was locked up to answer the charge of assault and battery.

William Gerlach, who has only one eye and who resides on the South Canal Depot in a small cabin, was yesterday morning found dead in bed. The deceased, who was about 60 years of age, was a native of Germany, and had been living alone for some time past. The Coroner was notified, and will hold an inquest this morning.

Whoever was guilty of the theft of a quantity of boots and shoes from the store of Mr. Hayward, No. 181 Lake street, on the night of the 25th inst., has succeeded in his purpose, as the goods have not been found, although the police have been on the alert. The thief or thieves entered the store by breaking open the rear door, and carried off the goods in bags.

The Rev. Dr. Bush and R. C. Ray on the Lessons of the Late Glorious Success.

"Lincoln and Grant Contrasted," was the subject of the Rev. Richard S. Willson's discourse in the South Congregational Church last evening, the text being:

The speaker started out by saying that the causes of success and failure must be sought in connection and sequence with, and proportion to, the work to be done. In order to do this in the present case they had only to consider the work which was to be done, and the qualifications of those who undertook it. The work was a double one, requiring, first, the overthrow of the rebellion, and, second, the reconstruction of the States which had been in rebellion. The first was a military work, and the second was civil. The first required military qualifications of a high order, and the second required statesmanship of the highest order. The first was the work of the hour, and the second was the work of the future. The first was the work of the present, and the second was the work of all time. The first was the work of the people, and the second was the work of the ages. The first was the work of the nation, and the second was the work of the world. The first was the work of the present, and the second was the work of all time. The first was the work of the people, and the second was the work of the ages. The first was the work of the nation, and the second was the work of the world.
